REGISTRATION CONTINUES FOR ADULT CLASSES

The Adult Education program for first semester for the most part got underway last week in the Appomattox County School Division. "Adults who have not registered and who desire to take a class may still enroll in any of the classes offered this semester. Classes for adults are taught on an individualized basis and adults will not be at any disadvantages by enrolling now," states R. B. Carter, Adult Education Coordinator. In several classes additional enrollment is needed if the class is to continue. The Appomattox County School Board reserves the right to cancel classes where enrollment is less than ten persons. A variety of classes for adults are being offered and adults are urged to take advantage of the many opportunities offered through the Adult Education Program. Classes that are starting now include typing, upholstery, GED Review, Adult Basic, Art, Sewing and bricklaying.

Persons desiring to enroll in a class or who want information concerning adult education classes may call 352-8253 between the hours of 8:30 and 5:00.

A schedule of classes available can be found on another page of this edition of the Times-Virginian.

FORUM ON DRUG EDUCATION HELD AT ACHS MONDAY NIGHT

Richardson, Appomattox County Sheriff; and Sue Holland, Director Drug Abuse Services, Lynchburg.

In answer to several questions, Mr. Kerr told the group that any drug problem is serious, however, now that the people are becoming aware and want to help he feels that something can be done to help anyone in our county with a drug problem. Sergeant Delp and/or representatives from the Virginia State Police Department, along with the Sheriff's Department will be able to provide speakers on the Drug Abuse Problem when asked. Kerr said that Alcohol abuse is a major problem in our county but the combination of drugs and alcohol use is on the rise.

Superintendent of Appomattox County Schools, Lloyd G. Walton in answering questions before the panel said that in only one case does he know of drug use in the sixth grade level and that case involved alcohol. There is evidence that some "pot" smokers are at the 7th and 8th grade level and that every effort is being made to help the student overcome the problem. Primarily, the school system is trying to control drug use in the Appomattox Middle School and Appomattox County High School by beginning drug education at the kindergarten level and continuing through grade 12. It is impossible to watch 900 high school students all the time but Walton feels that drug use on school grounds is very limited.

Sheriff Gene Richardson stated that he feels there is more of an alcohol problem in our county than a drug problem. It is really hard to tell for sure. To test for alcohol use, you can take a blood test; to test for a person using drugs, a blood test will not work.

Sue Holland, Drug Abuse Services HUB, Lynchburg, talked with the group about where you can go for help.

Ms. Holland feels that if you can personally communicate with your child you should first try and discuss all problems with him. If there is a break-down in communications with your children, she then suggested seeking help from your minister or a public agency such as D.A.S.H. (Drug Abuse Services HUB) or C.A.S.E. (Community Alcohol Services and Education.)

Persons connected with these agencies will be happy to talk with parents, parents and their children or the child alone if they so desire. All information is completely confidential and they are ready and willing to give assistance in any way possible.

The second forum in the three-part series will be publicised in this newspaper at a later date. Make plans to be present when it is made available. You may find it is quite interesting and informative.

CARE ABOUT LITTER PROBLEM.

The Pastor Speaks

One day the multitudes were gathering around Jesus and he went up into a mountain with his disciples. The he delivered to them the Sermon on The Mount. Here Jesus paints the portrait of the person who is the result of his work and sacrificial death on the cross. The Sermon On The Mount was addressed primarily to twelve of his disciples whom he had selected to be apostles. Others were present but the teachings were for the subjects of the spiritual kingdom Jesus came to establish and not the unbelieving world. It describes the kind of behaviour that is expected of them with respect to God and their fellow beings. The thing that so impressed the disciples was that they not only heard the sermon, they saw him live it.

The Golden Rule is the mountain top of this great sermon. "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even to them: for this is the law and the prophets" (Matt. 7:12f. The Golden Rule teaches us how we are to treat other people. It produces attitudes of understanding, helpfulness, forgiveness, generosity, and kindness toward other people. It prevents an over critical attitude toward other people. It prevents a person from being an habitual fault finder. This is what Jesus meant when he said, "Judge not, that ye be not judged."

When we speak of living by the Golden Rule, we should add this word of caution. People are not saved by living according to the Golden Rule. No one is going to live his life perfectly according to it. The Golden Rule deals with your relationship to your fellowman. Your Salvation depends upon the way you answer the question, "What will you do with Jesus which is called the Christ?" "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved."

Red Oak Baptist Church

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

OF WORDS AND POWER

Lesson for September 24, 1978

Background Scripture:
1 Thessalonians 1:2-10; 2 Peter 1:3-7.
Devotional Reading:
John 13:31-35.

Rev. Althouse

Halford Luccock tells us that the preaching of Charles Wesley in London was a matter of some discomfort to his fellow clergy of that city. For Wesley had been preaching, says Luccock, "not only as though he had believed what he was saying, but as though he expected those who listened to believe, and do something about it." It was that last expectation which was more than the other clergy could stand. "The last thing in the world they wanted around their comfortable parishes was something doing."

Not Only in Word

Charles and John Wesley had a reputation for that kind of preaching; the kind that resulted in doing something. They preached many sermons, wrote many treatises and Charles wrote many hymns, but the genius was in the action they provoked, not their words.

A Lutheran scholar recently conducted a joint Lutheran-Catholic study entitled, "Who Are The Unchurched?" The study was an attempt to determine why roughly 40% of the people in the USA prefer to remain outside the organized church.

One of the most prevalent reasons, he found, was that many people outside the churches found a wide gap between what church people say and do about their faith.

Although we may question the degree to which that judgement is justified, we can hardly escape the admission that there is often far too great a gap between our words and our deeds. We tend to talk a much better religious game than we play, a vivid contrast to the model lifted up by Paul to the Thessalonians: for our gospel came to you not only in word, but also in power and in the Holy Spirit and with full conviction" (1 Thessalonians 1:5).

But Also In Power

Paul and his associates had spent a lot of time preaching and teaching in Thessalonica, but their effectiveness was not to be found merely in their words: "You know what kind of men we proved to be among you (1:5). The conclusive power of Paul's mission was the example they set before the new church there.

In return, the Thessalonians responded with deeds as well as words so that Paul could say with pride, "you became imitators of us and of the Lord...so that you became an example to all the believers in Macedonia and Achaia" (1:6,7).

Leslie Weatherhead tells the story of a little boy who tripped and fell while carrying a basket of eggs. A small crowd quickly gathered round the crying boy: "What a pity!" "Poor little chap!" were some of the expressions of sympathy. But a man stepped forward and, pulling a coin from his pocket said, "I care half-a-crown." Turning to the man next to him, he asked: "How much do you care?" "In a little time," says Weatherhead, "they translated feeling into action." And beliefs are never faith until they are translated into action!
